

After Isaiah 1:3

Before I even open the door,
the dogs are barking their greetings.

My dogs recognize me as their owner,
they clearly know who provides their dinner.

Each day they remind me of my own status,
that I too belong to a source beyond myself,
that my sustenance is not just the work of my hands.